

E-mail from my ICS buddy, Paul Warner.

Some Google eBooks for Light Winter Reading

FROM: PW

TO: S. Robert Powell

CC: S. Robert Powell Laurie Kramer

Thursday, October 20, 2011 10:59 AM

[http://www.google.com/books?
id=aTFDAAAAYAAJ&pg=PP1#v=onepage&q&f=false](http://www.google.com/books?id=aTFDAAAAYAAJ&pg=PP1#v=onepage&q&f=false)

[http://www.google.com/books?
id=FhNBAAAAYAAJ&pg=PP1#v=onepage&q&f=false](http://www.google.com/books?id=FhNBAAAAYAAJ&pg=PP1#v=onepage&q&f=false)

[http://www.google.com/books?
id=VxIWAAAAMAAJ&pg=PP1#v=onepage&q&f=false](http://www.google.com/books?id=VxIWAAAAMAAJ&pg=PP1#v=onepage&q&f=false)

Cock-a-Doodle-Do

FROM:S. Powell

TO:PW

Friday, October 21, 2011 2:05 PM

October 21, 2011

Paul:

The three ICS poultry books are wonderful. I am very pleased to have these copies of them. Thank you very much for sending them my way.

I continue, not surprisingly, to be enveloped by the world of exhibition poultry. In the attached file, you will see SRP and one of his feathered friends. The story made page one, top of the page, in the September 7, 2011 issue of The Carbondale News.

Hope all is well in your world.

Best,

Robert

Re: Cock-a-Doodle-Do

FROM: PW

TO: S. Powell

Friday, October 21, 2011 3:28 PM

You should crow, sir. Well done.

Things are fair here at this end. Laurie has about 18 grand babies now, and more on the way.

Personally, I have a brain tumor, but it isn't worth carrying on about. Seriously, it's only a bump on the pituitary that seven or so out of 10 people probably have without ever knowing, but mine apparently secretes excess growth hormone, putting me in the rare diagnosis of acromegaly and in league with such similarly afflicted personages as André the Giant and Tony Robbins. A drug I'm taking seems to be effectively calming down the over-production of growth hormone, so I have no worries nor immediate prospects of surgery.

I salute you, sir. I shall leave work tonight and devour a basket of spicy chicken wings in your honor.

PW